STATE HISTORIAN and DIRECTOR

PREFACE

This volume is prepared and published under the authority contained in section 7 of the Act of August 20, 1918, directing the publication as follows:

"Be it further enacted, That an official and statistical register of the State of Georgia shall be compiled every two years by the Director to contain: (1) brief sketches of the several State officials, the members of Congress from Georgia, the Supreme Court Judges, Judges of the Court of Appeals, members of Senate and House of Representatives, Judges and Solicitors-General of the Circuit Courts of the State; (2) rosters of all state and county officials; (3) lists of all State "institutions" with official boards; (4) State and county population and election statistics, and (5) miscellaneous statistics bearing upon relative matters of current interest or likely to be of value to the future historian."

All possible care has been exercised to insure accuracy and the latest data and statistics obtainable have been used. It is hoped, therefore, that the Register, both as a directory and as a historical publication, will fill the need long felt for such a work.

STATE SONG—GEORGIA

By an Act of the General Assembly of 1922 the following poem written by Robert Loveman and set to music by Mrs. Lollie Belle Wylie was adopted as the official song of Georgia:

From the mountains to the sea,
Where her rivers roll,
There I ever long to be,
O, my heart; my soul;
By her meadows let me lie,

In her vales remain,
Underneath her rooftree sky
Watch the shadows wane.

Georgia-land of our delight,
Haven of the blest,
Here by happy day and night,
Peace enthrones the breast.
Georgia, Georgia, dearest earth
Underneath the blue,
Clime that ever giveth birth
To the brave and true.

GEORGIA'S STATE FLOWER—THE CHEROKEE ROSE

The Cherokee Rose which grows luxuriantly in all sections of the State was adopted as Georgia's State Flower by the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs and confirmed by the State Legislature in 1916. Originally thought to be indigenous to Southern soil it is now the opinion of the National Department of Agriculture that the rose was introduced into the State perhaps directly from China or from China by way of England. One well-known horticulturist agreeing with this view gives the year 1757 as the date of its introduction into England and advances the belief that it reached the United States shortly afterwards. The name, Cherokee Rose, is a local appellation derived from the Cherokee Indians who widely distributed the plant, which elsewhere is known by the botannical name of rosa sinica. Growing wild, the rose is a high climbing shrub, frequently attaining the proportions of a vine, is excessively thorny and generously supplied with leaves of a vivid green. Its blooming time is in the early spring but favorable conditions will produce a second flowering in the fall of the year. In color the rose is a waxy white with large golden center and the petals are of an exquisite velvety texture. Because of its hardy nature the plant is well adapted to hedge purposes and has been used extensively in this fashion throughout the South. The action of the General Assembly in naming this the floral emblem of the State is contained in the following resolution:

Whereas, in many of the States of the Union some flower indigenous to the soil of the State has been chosen as an emblem of its sovereignty, and

Whereas, hitherto the General Assembly of Georgia has made no such selection; and

Whereas, the Cherokee Rose, having its origin among the aborigines of the northern portion of the State of Georgia, is indigenous to its soil, and grows with equal luxuriance in every county of the State,

Be it, therefore, by the House of Representatives of Georgia, the Senate concurring, resolved, That, at the suggestion and request of the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs, the Cherokee Rose be and the same is hereby adopted as and declared to be the floral emblem of the State of Georgia.

THE FLAG OF THE STATE OF GEORGIA

The flag of the State of Georgia was not provided for by Legislative action until 1879 when "an Act to declare and establish the flag of the State of Georgia" passed both Houses and was approved by the Governor on October 17th. The decription of the flag as given in that Act is as follows: "The flag of the State of Georgia shall be a vertical band of blue next the staff and occupying one-third of the entire flag; the remainder of the space shall be divided into three horizontal bands, the upper and lower of which said bands shall be scarlet in color and the middle band white." The coat of arms of the State was added to the flag in 1905 when the Legislature passed an Act "to reorganize the military forces of the State, to adopt and make of force a military code," etc. The provisions for the flag as found in this law and re-enacted in 1916 in the "act to reorganize the military forces of the State, to conform the organization and discipline to the requirements of the United States," etc., are as follows: "the flag of the State of Georgia shall be a vertical band of blue next to the flagstaff, and occupying one-third of the entire flag; the remainder of the space shall be equally divided into three horizontal bands, the upper and lower of which shall be scarlet in color, and the middle band white. On the blue field shall be stamped, painted or embroidered the coat-of-arms of the State."

GEORGIA'S GREAT SEALS

Since the granting of Georgia's Colonial charter in 1732 there have been four Great Seals by which the stamp of authority has been affixed to her most important official transactions. The first of these was the Colonial Seal or Seal of the Trustees; the second, the Provincial Seal or Seal of the Royal Governors; the third, the Great Seal of 1777; and the fourth, the Great Seal of 1798, which though in use today has been slightly modified twice.

The Colonial Seal, adopted by the Trustees and brought to Georgia by James Edward Oglethorpe in 1733 bore, on its reverse side, the famous motto "Non Sibi Sed Aliis," meaning "Not For Ourselves But For Others," and showed a device of silk worms, some beginning and others completing their labors. No clear print of this side of the seal, known as the "Common Seal," and used to attest orders, certificates, and grants can be located. The obverse side, or the face of the seal, pictured two male figures resting upon urns from which poured streams representing the rivers, Savannah and Altamaha, the upper and lower boundaries of the Colony; a female figure seated in the center wears the cap of liberty and holds in one hand a spear while the other rests upon a cornucopia; behind this figure rises a tree above which is inscribed the legend "Colonia Georgia Augueat"—"May the Colony of Georgia Wax Strong." This face of the seal, the Great Seal proper, was used for attesting legislative acts, deeds, and commissions. The original seal is still preserved in the British Museum in London.

When Georgia became a Province the old seal of the Trustees was superceded by the new seal of the Province approved by the King on June 21, 1754. This seal the largest and most beautiful of all the State's Emblems showed the following design: On the face a figure representing the Genius of the Colony offering a skein of silk to his Majesty with the motto, "Hinc Laudem Sperati Coloni" and around the circumference the inscription, "Segillium Provinciae Nostrae Georgiae in America." On the other side appeared His Majesty's arms, together with his crown, garter and supporters, and this inscription: "Georgius 11, Dei Gratia, Magnae Brittanniae Franciae et Hiberniae Rex, Fidei Defensor, Brunswici et Luneburgi Dux, Sacri Romani Imperii Archi Thesaurius et Princeps Elector." Many wax impressions of this seal, four-and-one-half inches in diameter and one-half inch thick, are to be found in the Capitol, attached to official documents of various kinds, and the original seal, made of silver, is in the custody of the Georgia Historical Society in Savannah.

This symbol of authority, however, was likewise discarded when the people of Georgia rebelled against the authority of the King, arrested and imprisoned the Royal Governor, and established for themselves the Republican form of government. The new Great Seal provided for in the Constitution of 1777, was, perhaps in accordance with democratic ideas, smaller in size and simpler in design, showing on one side a scroll bearing the inscription "The Constitution of the State of Georgia" and the motto "Pro Bono Publico," and on the other side an elegant house and other buildings, fields of corn and meadows covered with sheep and cattle, with a river running through the same and a ship under full sail, and the motto, "Deus Nobis Haec Otia Fecit." Wax impressions of this seal are comparatively few in number and the original by an order of the Legislature, bearing date of Feb. 8, 1799, was "broken in the presence of his excellency the Governor."

The present Great Seal was authorized by the Constitution of 1798 but was not adopted until February 8, 1799, when an Act of the Legislature, making the following provision for the seal was approved by the Governor: "On the one side a view of the seashore with a ship bearing the flag of the United States, riding near a wharf, receiving aboard hogsheads of tobacco and bales of cotton, emblematic of the exports of this State; at a small distance a boat landing from the interior of the State with hogsheads etc., on board representing her internal traffic; in the back part of the same side, a man in the act of ploughing; and at a small distance a flock of sheep in different postures shaded by a flourishing tree, the motto on this side agriculture and commerce, 1799. That the other side contain three pillars supporting an arch, with the word Constitution, engraven within the same, emblematic of the Constitution supported by three departments of the government, viz.: the legislative, judicial and executive, the first pillar to have engraven on its base, wisdom; the second justice; and the third, moderation; on the right of the last pillar a man standing with a drawn sword, representing the aid of the military in defense of the Constitution; the motto, State of Georgia, 1799." A second legislative act relative to the Great Seal was signed December 5, 1799 and carried the following supplementary provisions: "Whereas, it appears that so much of the second section of the before recited Act, as are contained in the words following, towit: That the other side contain three pillars supporting an arch, with the word, Constitution, engraved within the same, emblematic of the Constitution supported by the three departments of government, viz.: The legislative, judicial and executive; the first pillar to have engraven on its base, wisdom, the second, justice, and the third moderation, could not be completely carried into execution, in as much as from examination of the size of the Great Seal established by the aforesaid Act, an impression of these words, wisdom, justice and moderation, engraven on the three aforesaid pillars, would not be legible or intelligible. Be it therefore enacted, That that part of the said before recited section, towit, the words, the pillar engraven on its base wisdom, the second justice, and the third, moderation, be and the same is hereby repealed. And that the Great Seal, as now deposited and in operation in the Secretary of State's office of this State, with the words, wisdom, justice and moderation engraven in a wreath on the separate pillars, emblematic of the several departments of the government, be and is hereby sanctioned, ratified and declared the Great Seal of the State of Georgia."

In 1861, following the formation of the union of the Confederate States of America, a new Constitution for Georgia was framed and the Great Seal of the State slightly modified. These changes reported to the Legislature November 12, 1863 by the commissioners appointed to make the alterations, were very slight, consisting of (1) replacement of the figures 1799 by that of 1776, the date of the first independence of the State, (2) the placing of the date 1861 amid the rays of a new rising sun, under the arch of the Constitution, representing a new independence, (3) the removal of the male figure with the drawn sword representing the military in defense of the Constitution, and (4) a change in size from two and one-fourth to two inches in diameter. An executive order of November 12, 1863 provided that "the new Great Seal be adopted and used on and after that date as the Great Seal of Georgia" but so far as the records of the State show the Seal was never attached to any official document. Following cessation of hostilities the Great Seal of 1799 came into use again as the Great Seal of the State and the Legislature of 1865-66 passed an Act which provided that the Great Seal of 1863 be "adopted as the Seal of the Secretary of State." And it is in use in that office today as the Seal of the department.

In 1914 the Legislature authorized the re-engraving of the Great Seal, long usage having made impossible the reading of the devices upon it, and at the same time provided that the date 1799 be once more changed to that of 1776. The newly engraved Seal was by executive order used on and after May 26, 1915, as the Great Seal of the State, the old seal, adopted 115 years before, being destroyed by the Governor on that date.

By law the Secretary of State is the custodian of the Great Seal, which is attached to official papers only on an executive order from the Governor.
